

£25,000 towards the future of lung cancer treatment

Supporting liquid biopsy research and clinical trials for people living with advanced lung cancer.

Everybreath's £25,000 research funding was celebrated at the 2026 Gala Ball.

What will the funding support?

Our donation will help employ a member of the research team to develop the use of liquid biopsies - blood tests that can detect information about a cancer - to monitor how patients with advanced lung cancer respond to targeted treatments over time.

The team hopes to investigate whether a liquid biopsy every three to six months, alongside existing scans, could provide additional information about treatment response and how a tumour's molecular profile changes. These insights may help doctors identify more personalised options for future treatment.

Helping patients access clinical research

The funded research team member will also support consultants with the day-to-day running of clinical trials at Guy's, helping research programmes that benefit patients from South East London and beyond.

A message from the research team

"Really appreciate that Everybreath chose to offer money for the conduct of our research. Thank you once again." — Alex
